"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDRICK, Saugerties, New York.

W. B. Utsey, St. George's, S. C., writes: I have used your August Flower for Dyspepsia and find it an excellent remedy.

Propagating Lobsters Artificially.

The first experiments in artificial propagation of lobsters were made simply in glass jars with sea water that was changed daily. Even under these primitive conditions the newly hatched fry thrived and grew to be of some size and healthy. Any one who desires to rear lobsters by hand can accomplish the purpose most quickly by keeping the spawn bearing females in suitable ponds or tanks until the young come out. In raising the animals on a large scale, however, it would be best to separate the eggs from the lobster and spread them upon trays, allowing the water to percolate among them, as is done with salmon eggs. By this method much trouble would be avoided, as well as the expense of feeding the adult lobsters.

There is no reason apparent wherefore the same success should not be obtained with lobsters as has been achieved with salmon, which have been made to swarm once more by myriads in streams depopulated by imprudent fishing. Already the lobsters on the North Atlantic coast are rapidly vanishing, and unless measures are soon taken for supplying their place by artificial propagation there will be none left. Apparently, however, it will be entirely practicable to turn out upon the depleted grounds many millions of young lobsters yearly as soon as proper plants for this object have been established.

One thing in favor of lobster raising, as to cheapness, is that they prefer food that is partially decomposed, and the waste food of the towns, now thrown away, might be most usefully employed by the lobster hatcheries. Stale fish is esteemed by lobsters an especial delicacy. —Interview in Washington Star.

Danger in Paper Money.

Passing from hand to hand among all classes of the people, it would be strange indeed if money, and especially paper money, did not in its transit become from time to time the vehicle of infectious disease. Even the crisp "fiver" of the Bank of England no doubt has often borne the germs of fever in its folds, and how much more then the greasy, discolored and well thumbed $1 note, or the paper fraction of some foreign currencies. Higher values have here a distinct advantage. Less common, less in keeping of the overcrowded poor, less handled and soiled, therefore they may perhaps in many cases run their circuit without having done much mischief.

There are, indeed, preservative circumstances which guard the sanitary credit of all paper currency. One is the very freedom of circulation and the ventilation this insures. Smoothness of surface is another, and a third, which operates in a minor degree, is found in the fact that not children are chiefly concerned in the business of exchange. These qualifications my suffice to justify, at least by a negative verdict, the employment of paper money from a sanitary standpoint.

Still a certain risk remains, and careful persons will do well to note this and on occasion to disinfect even their bank notes. The danger, such as it is, should also, in our opinion, be allowed some weight in deciding the question whether a small note currency, hitherto not found to be indispensable, should or should not be generally adopted. —London Lancet.

Devil Bird of La Soufriere.

The bird called the "devil bird of La Soufriere" by both Latet and Dutertre, has webbed feet like a duck or a goose and claws like a bird of prey, a sharp and curved bill, and large eyes, which cannot bear the light of day. When surprised in the daytime at a distance from its nest it will run or fly against everything in its way. Father Dutertre, in his description of Guadeloupe, where the volcano of La Soufriere is situated, says that the natives call the bird by a name which means "devil," and that they do so on account of a popular belief among them that the bird nests in the very crater of the volcano at a place inaccessible to man, among the melting lava and sulphurous fumes. Father Dutertre finishes his account of the devil bird in these words: "Here we have a bird of wonderful and surprising ingenuity, which fishes by the light of a volcano and hatches its eggs by the warmth of its gaseous discharges." —St. Louis Republic.

Dog's History.

In all Jewish history there is not a single allusion to hunting with dogs, though mention is frequently found of nets and snares. The Hindus likewise consider the animal unclean and submit to various purifications if they accidentally come into contact with one, believing that every dog is animated by a wicked and malignant spirit condemned to do penance in that form for crimes committed in a previous state of existence. Even in Egypt dogs now are as much avoided as they were once venerated. However, in Greece and Rome the beast was highly esteemed. Alexander the Great built a city in honor of a dog. —Interview in Washington Star.

As the fly glides rapidly over a smooth surface every step presses out a supply of gum strong enough to give him a sure footing and to sustain him in safety if he halts. So strong is the cement that that upon one of his six feet is quite sufficient to sustain the weight of his whole body. But if he stands still the gum may dry up and harden quickly, and so securely fasten the traveler's foot as to make a sudden step snap the leg itself.

THE MINING INTEREST.

The San Francisco Post says it was informed by H. M. Yerington, the Nevada railroad and mining man, that mining was never more prosperous in Nevada than it is just now. Either the Post misunderstood Mr. Yerington or Mr. Yerington misunderstands the mining situation in Nevada. Every Nevada who has paid enough attention to the mining interest to be capable of forming an intelligent opinion knows that it is not as prosperous as it has been and that outside of the Comstock, where the value of mines does not always depend upon their productiveness, the mining industry, is not prosperous in Nevada. In Central and Eastern Nevada mines which paid good wages, when silver was at par, or even above $1 25 per ounce, cannot be worked, except at a loss, with silver less than a dollar an ounce, notwithstanding the cost of production has been cheapened.

Only a few days ago there was general complaint because a shipment of bullion from the Overman, which assayed $14,685, netted only $11,000, though it contained considerable gold. Does Mr. Yerington believe that mining is as prosperous on the Comstock as it was when the Overman bullion would have brought the mine owners its full assay value? If Mr. Yerington would visit the eastern part of the State and look at the deserted mining camps, which were once prosperous, he would have the Post correct its misstatement, whether it be his or the reporter's.

What is the use of Senators Jones, Stewart, Teller, Vest and others battling with the gold bugs for the silver cause, if mining is more prosperous with silver at 93 cents an ounce than when silver was $1 29.29 an ounce? The truth is, the assertion of Mr. Yerington, or of the Post, if it is misunderstood or misrepresented him, will be used as an argument by every gold bug paper in the East against free coinage, conveying as it does the erroneous impression that mining is more prosperous in Nevada with silver less than a dollar an ounce, than when it was at par.

COLORED CITIZENS' COMPLAINTS.

The American Citizens' Equal Rights Association, composed of colored men, held a convention at Cincinnati this week. They adopted a series of resolutions, protesting against the efforts of the so-called leaders of their race to secure recognition and office from the Administration to the exclusion of more progressive men. They also direct attention to the fact that colored men are appointed to Federal offices only in the South, where the only political service they can render is to send delegates to the National Convention, while they are denied office in the Northern States where their votes are necessary to the success of the party.

While it is a fact that colored men are appointed postmasters and given positions in the Internal Revenue offices and custom houses in the South, they seldom get anything in the North above porter or janitor, doubtless for the reasons stated.

INCREASING REVENUES.

The internal revenue receipts continue to increase and exceed the estimates. For the first nine months of the fiscal year, which will end June 30th next, the receipts are $7,000,000 more than for the same time in the last fiscal year, and considerably in excess of the estimates. If the same rate of increase continues until June 30th, the receipts will exceed $150,000,000, which is greater than at any previous time in the last twenty years.

The revenue for the year ending June 30, 1890, was $142,500,000, against $130,800,000 for 1889.

California has received its share of the direct tax authorized to be refunded by act of Congress. It amounts to $208,246 29. What's the matter with Nevada that it does not get its proportion of the money? The cash is in the United States Treasury, and will be paid to the State on demand.

The New York Mail and Express, edited by Colonel Shepard, accuses John Russell Young of arousing the Chinese Government's ire against Minister Blair. Young was formerly United States Minister at Peking, and would like to get the place again.

A Difference of Opinion.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The question of the United States to take the Itata on the high seas is not altogether settled. The State Department people are inclined to doubt the right. The whole question arises from a dispute as to the character of the vessel. Were she a pirate or a vessel of American register engaged in the acts of violation of the treaty stipulations, the case would be a simple one, but she is merely a Chilean vessel engaged in the transportation of a suspected cargo. In the matter of international law involved, it would seem as though the State Department is not in entire accord with the rest of the Administration for both Attorney General Miller, and Secretary Tracy lean to the Itata is legitimate prey.

The Chilean Steamer Itata—Two Deserters Interviewed.

SAN DIEGO, May 8.—The Associated Press reporter to-day secured an interview with the two deserters from the Chilean steamer Itata. They said the Chilean man-of-war Esmeralda which is now in the hands of the insurgents, left Iquique early in April to convey the steamer Itata to the nearest American port for the purpose of buying provisions and to get arms, which had already been purchased by an agent of the insurgents in New York and shipped to San Francisco to be placed on some coasting vessel and transferred to the Itata at some rendezvous to be arranged later. The transport and man-of-war sailed northward in company as far as Cape San Lucas, where a transfer was made of a large portion of the crew of the Esmeralda to the hold of the Itata with their cutlasses and muskets, and after the Captain of the war ship had himself gone aboard the Itata the vessels parted, it being understood that the Esmeralda would wait off San Lucas for the return of the transport. One of the deserters who gave these facts was one of the marines who lay hidden in the hold of the Itata, but after spending about a week in those stuffy quarters he deemed life ashore preferable to his cramped position on board, and jumped overboard Tuesday night. After the transfer at Cape San Lucas the Chileans who were stowed away in the minor recesses of the Itata knew very little of all that was occurring. They did know, however, that they were prepared to take part in any fight that might come along. It was an open secret on board that they were to meet the Robert and Minnie somewhere off this port but just where they were not informed. The captain of the Esmeralda being aboard they acted under his orders. He told them that they would go back on board of their own ship at Cape San Lucas, where she was waiting for them, and then sail for Chili.

Before leaving the man-of-war, rations were becoming short, in fact none of the marines on the battle ships at the front had any too much to eat and supplies which the Itata purchased here were to be distributed around as far as they would go. When asked if the Esmeralda might not have come north after the Itata left her, the Chilean said that it was altogether probable that she had, as the transport had not expected to remain here as long as she did and the officers of the war ship probably feared that she had got into some trouble.

The deserters are more intelligent than the average Chilean seen in these parts and gave as a reason for leaving the Itata that they wanted to see more of the northern country. They had no cause to complain of the treatment they received either on board the Esmeralda or Itata. Marshal Gord and his assistant will return to Los Angeles tomorrow unless ordered otherwise. The man-of-war Omaha is coaling in the stream and will sail for San Francisco as soon as supplied with fuel.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—The shock of an earthquake was felt in this city a few minutes after 6 o'clock this evening. Buildings were shaken quite severely but no damage is reported.

SAN RAFAEL, May 8.—This evening at eight minutes past six a heavy earthquake shock was felt here. The vibrations were from west to east. The shock lasted about six seconds.

Judges Refuse to Levy a Tax. Special to the Journal. KANSAS CITY, May 8.—There is trouble in the execution of the recent judgments in the bond cases against Casa and St. Clair counties. It grows out of the refusal of the Judges of the County Court to levy taxes for the payment of these judgments. The Judges in each county announced their determination to go to jail rather than order a tax on the people. There are two judgments against St. Clair county, one in favor of B. D. Stewart and the other in favor of the Ninth National Bank of New York, aggregating $100,000. When Deputy Marshal Ochsley served the papers on the Judges yesterday they told him they would never order the tax, that they had been elected under a promise to the people never to levy a tax for the payment of these bonds, and that they were not only not disposed to do it but were afraid to do it. The condition of affairs in Casa county are even more desperate. Judgment was rendered some time ago in favor of Albert Parker, a capitalist of San Diego, California, for about $100,000. A mandamus ordering the levy of the taxes was granted by the Court and disregarded. Three Judges were arrested and gave bonds in the sum of $1,000 to appear before the Court in Kansas City the second Monday in June. They are railroad bonds and were issued by the counties twenty years ago.

Governor Bulkeley Files an Answer. Special to the Journal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 8.—Attorney Case, acting for Governor Bulkeley and Lieutenant Governor Merwin, filed an answer to quo warranto proceedings brought by Morris and Alsop in the Superior Court this morning. Governor Bulkeley claims that he and no other person is the true and lawful Governor of Connecticut, that the General Assembly of Connecticut at its January session, 1889, by a joint ballot elected him to be Governor for two years, and until his successor was duly qualified. He still acts as Governor because no successor has been chosen. He states that Morris did not have a majority over all, and on account of manifest mistakes in the returns it was impossible to tell whom, if any one, had been legally chosen Governor. Concluding, Bulkeley denies that he usurps his office, and says he uses said office by warrant and authority of law, and asks to be dismissed of and from things charged upon him in information. Merwin's answer is the same.

The President in Idaho.

Special to the Journal.

POCATELLO, Idaho, May 8.—The Presidential party arrived here at 7 o'clock this evening after an uneventful trip across the country of lava beds. They were greeted here by a large and enthusiastic crowd. A party of prominent citizens of Salt Lake and Ogden, and United States officials in Utah, joined the party here.

Sir Edwin Arnold's Enthusiastic Opinions of Japanese People.

As for the people, I am and always shall be of good St. Francis Xavier's feeling. "This nation is the delight of my soul." Never have I passed days more happy, tranquil or restorative than among Japanese of all classes in the cities, towns and villages of Japan. Possibly that is because I have had no business relations with my kind and pleasant Japanese friends, and have never talked very much metaphysics; but it seems certainly an easy way to keep on the right side of folks to let philosophy and theology alone.

Moreover it is, no doubt, necessary for such experiences to go a little behind that sort of Japan which you find on the Matsubara of Yokohama or Kobe, in the Yoshiwaras of those and the other open ports. At very little distance from the surface, which we civilizing westerners have done our best to spoil, will be still discovered the old, changeless, high tempered, generous, simple and sweet mannered Japan of old.

I frankly confess it has entirely charmed me; and therefore what I say of this Japanese nation, and their manners and customs, must be received with the proper caution attaching to the language of a friend, and even a lover. But where else in the world does there exist such a conspiracy to be agreeable; such a widespread compact to render the difficult affairs of life as smooth and graceful as circumstances admit; such fair decrees of fine behavior fixed and accepted for all; such universal restraint of the coarser impulses of speech and act, such pretty picturesqueness of daily existence; such lively love of nature as the embellisher of that existence; such sincere delight in beautiful artistic things; such frank enjoyment of the enjoyable; such tenderness to little children; such reverence for parents and old persons; such widespread refinement of taste and habits; such courtesy to strangers; such willingness to please and to be pleased.—Sir Edwin Arnold in Scribner's.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own brand of Hood's; he told me that he would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELLA A. GORR, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Sunday Show.

ED. JOURNAL: On reading the protest that was published this morning in the JOURNAL against the performance of the Minstrels on Sunday night, a stranger might suppose that Reno was a very straight-laced town indeed, and that the "moral sense" of the community was almost puerile in its asceticism.

But one familiar with the town and the ways of several of the gentlemen whose names are signed to the protest might perhaps be allowed to wonder if in making this protest they were not drawing a very fine distinction.

Is it not a fact that the stores kept by some of the signers will be open all the morning of that Sunday, about the desecration of which they are so solicitous? It is possible, of course, that a cold wave of piety has suddenly struck Reno, and these gentlemen may feel that they would rather be right than consistent. Nevertheless, there is still some beauty in consistency.

If there were anything intrinsically harmful in the proposed exhibition it should not be permitted on Sunday nor on any other day. But who will pretend that this performance is one which any gentlemen or any lady in Reno may not attend with perfect propriety.

TOLERATION.

Reno, May 8, 1891.

Removal.

The Reno Manufacturing Company has been moving their stock from the Opera House block for the past three days to the corner of First and Virginia streets, near the Iron bridge. This concern seems to have entered into the farm implement business on a large scale, judging from the assortment passing through the streets. To-day they unload a car of Standard Mowers direct from the factory.

REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL BRAY'S REPORT TO THE RENO SCHOOL BOARD FOR THE MONTH ENDING APRIL 24, 1891.

Those interested in public education should give careful attention to the statistics of attendance for the various grades. The grades are named or numbered according to the time the pupils therein have been attending school, or as nearly so as can be determined as a general average. Some of the grades, for some reason, show a much smaller percentage of attendance than others.

Parents should note carefully their children's deportment, attendance and standing in school as set forth in the report cards forwarded each month.

Thatcher's Minstrels arrived in Reno at 12:30 last night. Dickie Jose informs the JOURNAL that Mr. Thatcher never intended to give a performance in Reno on Sunday night, and all arrangements made by his agent were contrary to instructions. The agent was instructed to arrange for a performance on Friday night if possible, and if that could not be done then to arrange for a matinee Saturday afternoon. Dickie says he thinks too much of his Reno friends to perform for them on Sunday night. They leave for Virginia this morning, and after the performance to-night in Virginia Dick will return to Reno and spend the Sabbath.

ST. ANGELO SOUTHERN BIRDS.

Sam Hopkins Describes Some Denizens of the Virginia Backwoods.

"Didn't yo' never hyar 'bout elpenstretchers?" asked Sam Hopkins the other day.

Sam is a little colored chap that runs errands and makes himself generally useful about an uptown hotel. He hails from Charlottesville, Va., and what Sam doesn't know about the Virginia woods isn't worth knowing. Sam may trifle with the truth sometimes, but he puts on such an air of injured innocence when any of his statements are doubted that you are almost forced to believe him.

"Never hyar 'bout elpenstretchers?" he again repeated. "Why, they're the curiousest birds in all Virginy. What they's like? Why, bless yo' stars, they ain't like nothin' in these hyar parts. Yo' kin only find 'em in the swamps back o' Charlottesville, in the spring time, too.

"What they is in the summer? They ain't nowhar. They's jess frogs an' lizards. Well, when yo' want fur to shoot elpenstretchers yo' takes your gun an' goes out in the swamp at night. Yo' sees they burrows in the ground day times an' comes out at night to feed.

"They's bigger'n a quail, an' most as big as a 'en. Ain't got no feathers—only long bristles, like a porcupine. They's as black as yo' hat, too, an' looks like a young rooster with his feathers all pulled out. Good to eat? Yes, s'ree, Mos' as good as 'possum. Yo' has to be mighty keeful, too, for if a elpenstretcher sticks yo' with one o' them ar' quills yo's a dead man, certain s'ree. In the summer time they changes into lizards an' frogs. They's jess the biggest frogs yo' ever see, too.

"An' yo' never hyar o' sorns neither? Well, sakes alive! Why, me an' my Cousin Bill killed mos' a thousand o' 'em in one night. Sorns is jess like black-birds, only smaller.

"All yo' has to do is to go in the woods with a pitchfork light an' a long pole. I jess went out one night with a light an' pole, an' Bill he held a big bag. Jess as fas' as I'd knock 'em off the limb they'd fall in Bill's bag. But they's common all over Virginy.

"Then they's the gingsus cutus, bigger'n a elephant, and the whangtdoodle bird that flies aroun' nights and carries off pigs and cattle. An' say, mister, they's got a green bug down there mos' a foot high, an'—

"Hol' on, sah! That ain't half they's got down there." Then, as I had turned to leave, after expressing my incredulity, Sam remarked, with an air of injured innocence:

"Well, ef it doan' jess beat me. These hyar Yankees won' believe nuthin' less they sees 'em."—New York Herald.

A Conductor's Savvity.

A Pennsylvania railroad conductor on one of the limited trains between New York and Washington the other night entered the first coach, found it crowded, and in one of the front seats upon the left was a young man. He was well, even elegantly, dressed. In his hand he held a French novel. Upon his small and ordinary countenance there sat the haughty look of reserve of the imitation gentleman.

When the conductor entered and called for the tickets this youthful person affected to be so absorbed in his book that the conductor passed him by, calling first upon the rest of the passengers, even going clear through the train before he returned to disturb the haughty reader. When the conductor came back the young person still refused to pay any attention. The conductor waited a moment and then called out rather sharply for his ticket.

The youthful and now thoroughly contemptuous person, noticing that the man, whom he called the guard of the train, had addressed him with some brusqueness, which he translated into rudeness, took his ticket and, without looking at the conductor, threw it upon the floor. The graduate of the Pennsylvania school of manners was fully equal to this unusual situation. He showed no temper, no excitement, nor any lack of repose. With the calm gravity of a man who is sure of himself he stooped to the floor, punched the fallen ticket the requisite number of times with great gravity, and then quietly laid it back upon the floor where it had been dropped and walked calmly on amid the roars of the entire car.—T. C. Crawford in New York Tribune.

How Playing Marbles Are Made.

Nowly all the common marbles which drag down the pockets of our boys are made in Oberstein, Germany. They are made from the refuse of the agate and stone quarries in that neighborhood. The stone is broken into small cubes by blows of a light hammer. These small blocks of stone are thrown by the shovelful into the "hopper" of a small mill, formed of a bed of stone, having its surface grooved with concentrated furrows; above this is the "runner," which is made of hard wood having a level face on its lower surface. The upper block is made to revolve rapidly, water being delivered upon the grooves of the bed stone where the marbles are being rounded. It takes about fifteen minutes to finish a bushel of good marbles ready for "snapping." One mill will turn out 170,000 marbles per week. The very hardest "crackers," as the boys call them, are made by a slower process, somewhat analogous, however, to the other.—New York Telegram.

A Mad Race.

Mrs. Drubbins (who has been reading of the performances of a somnambulist)—The paper says that last night a man jumped out of a widow to the roof of another house, and ran along that till he came to a church roof, when he leaped to that and climbed up the steeple.

Mr. Drubbins—How long had they been married?—Good News.

Joseph Jefferson is not only an admirable actor, but he is a painter of much more than ordinary skill and power. The work that he has performed in either department would have been sufficient to have secured for him more than common reputation.
